Jesses. S. Vanderzee and F. M. Scharaz, boatmen at Juarantine, who have the privilege of boarding newly arrived emigrant ships for the purpose of selling bread, to-meeo, fruit, &c. to the passengers, have written us to leny, in the strongest terms, the allegations made by sames Holmes, in a card published in our paper a few lays since. The boatmen dony that they sell, or ever lid sell, ardent spirits to the passengers, or that they were bought rags from them, except in one finatance, and hen the Health Officer was about to dismiss them for the offence. They also allege that the parties lately arrested by the Heaith Officer went over to an infected ship, and endeavored to take two passengers from off the ressel. Officers Lesbach, Nolan and Swackhamer, deputed by the Mayor to do duty at Quarantine, endorse the declars referred to above.

LIFE SKETCHES FROM COMMON PATHS,

A Series of american Tales,
By Mrs. Julia L. Dukon.
One volume. 12mo , coth. $1
[From the Indianapola Journal]
This work, about to be issued by the Messrs. Appleton, is the production of one of Indiana's most gifted mothers, and one which she may be product to recognize among the literary exponents of one of her pioners teachers. These sketches, in pith, point and pathon, with not suffer in comparison with Irray and power of language; the high with give; the simplicity, purity and power of language; the high moral tone of these pictures, beepeak the suthor's sympathy with the resilies of carth and the hopes of a better world. They cambody the best thoughts, maturest experiences and rickest productions of a chastened imagination, cultivated it tellect and a heart trained in the school of the Great Teacher. The daughters of Indiana will do well to read it; and then inquire whether heir ments and moral discipline will se zure such results at the age of fourscore years. It is an admirable book, worthy the honor of many ciltions.
